CS Docket No. 99-251

To: The Commission

REPLY COMMENTS OF OPENNET COALITION

OpenNET Coalition ("OpenNET") hereby files in reply to the comments submitted in the above-referenced proceeding, the proposed acquisition of MediaOne Group, Inc. ("MediaOne") by AT&T Corporation ("AT&T"). While the initial comments are virtually uniform in demonstrating that the unconditioned merger of AT&T and MediaOne would harm consumers and hinder the development of a competitive Internet marketplace, we wish to add to the record the accompanying "white paper" entitled "Frequently Asked Questions About AT&T's Acquisition Of MediaOne, Open Access, And The Public Interest."

OpenNET is an organization composed of more than 700 members – including Internet firms of every type, and other communications companies as listed below – dedicated to promoting the rights of all consumers to obtain affordable, high-speed access to the Internet from the provider of their choice. Our coalition believes that competition among Internet services providers over "first mile" broadband networks will lower prices, spur innovation, and advance the social and economic benefits of the Internet. OpenNET, therefore, has been working to ensure that cable companies provide broadband Internet access to independent ISPs on terms equal to those that they offer their own ISP.

AT&T has already made clear its refusal to allow consumers the same choice of ISPs for broadband service that they enjoy in – and that has fueled the growth of – the narrowband Internet world. AT&T's pending acquisition of MediaOne's assets will lock in AT&T's anti-choice, anti-consumer model for two out of every three Americans. And through AT&T's control of @Home and proposed acquisition of MediaOne's interest in RoadRunner, AT&T would be able almost single-handedly to ensure that cable's stranglehold on consumer choice and ISP competition extends and persists throughout the nation.

We therefore submit the attached FAQs to assist the Commission in assessing the critical implications of the AT&T/MediaOne mega-merger – and to make clear what the issue of open Internet access is really all about. For all the reasons set forth in that attachment, we strongly urge the Commission to require AT&T – as a condition on any approval of this merger – to provide nondiscriminatory access for unaffiliated ISPs seeking to afford cable consumers a real choice in their provider of Internet service and content.

Respectfully submitted,

OPENNET COALITION*
